 - Joseph Sites: "★★★★★" Excellent class! When I went into the class my first aid training was to stop the bleeding and call 911. After the class, I am very confident that I could handle many of the problems that can arrive in the back country. But what made the class exceptional was the way Matt lead the instruction. Matt provided the theory, the background behind the theory, an explanation of why the body was reacting to a certain situation and the symptoms that it produced. This was great for me because memorization has never been my strong point, but if I understood the basics I can always figure out the next step which will stay with me much longer. (June 9 at 2:56pm)
 - Greg Patti: "★★★★★" Great class - excellent role playing scenarios to reinforce the training. Hope I never have to use it, but better off now knowing what to do in case of emergency. Thanks Matt!! (June 7 at 5:37pm)
 - Jeanine DeNitto: "★★★★★" thanks again for a great class! (June 6 at 8:49pm)
 - Kathleen Mussay Johnson: "★★★★★" ABSOLUTELY FANTASTIC class! Instructor Matt was terrific and made the learning experience all the more better with actual hands-on outside learning. Great to hear actual stories of things happening out in the real world - we could relate to how important this stuff is. THE MORE PEOPLE WHO LEARN THIS STUFF - THE BETTER OFF WE ALL ARE. The first full review is from Vinnie Mascia, who has a profile picture of a horse. The review text is: "★★★★★ Even though I am a health care provider I was amazed how much I learned in taking Matt's course. He was enthusiastic and presented in a way that made the material both relevant and interesting. Two thumbs up!". The review is dated "February 17 at 1:03am" and includes "Like" and "Comment" options.

The second review is from Nick Um, with a profile picture of a person outdoors. The review text is: "★★★★★ I took this course to lead outdoor climbing trips. Materials covered in this course were both intriguing and very useful. I would definitely recommend this course to anyone who spends a significant amount of time outdoors. It is also highly affordable and I am planning on getting recertified.". The review is dated "February 16 at 11:56pm" and includes "Like" and "Comment" options.

The third review is from Jeff Bordogna, with a profile picture of a group of people. The review text is: "★★★★★ This is an amazing course! Not only did I learn a lot about wilderness first aid (and non-wilderness first aid) thanks to Matt's great teaching, I was able to better cement this knowledge in my mind thanks to the many mock scenarios over the course of the weekend (see someone acting out a particular injury, and having to figure out what is wrong). This course really highlights how unprepared I was on my previous adventures, and would be helpful to anyone in a situation requiring some sort of medical attention, not just those that frequent the remote wilderness. I highly recommend it!". The review is dated "February 16 at 11:49pm" and includes "Like" and "Comment" options.

At the bottom of the review list, it says "1-20 of 28 Results" with left and right navigation arrows.

★★★★★ Excellent course. Matt's knowledge, skills and experience contributed to a great course outline. Even with many years emergency experience, I came away with new tools for my patient care toolbox. Thank you!

★★★★★ took it during bitter cold weekend in Jan 2011. Matt is excellent. Scenarios dealt with previous lecture and lecture was properly sprinkled with examples, hands-on and good notes. As a Scoutmaster of a Boy Scout Troop, I took this to ensure best preparation possible when I take out a group of boys in the wilderness - Matt provided this and more.

★★★★★ Matt is a fantastic instructor and the content of this course is vital for anyone doing hiking, backpacking or other outdoor activities, whether that's on your own or with a group, into the backcountry or even just a mile up a trail. Plenty of practice scenarios bring hands on training to supplement the lectures and discussion.

★★★★★ Great course! Matt Rosefsky is a great instructor and the class includes a decent balance between class/lecture and practical exercises outside. Matt is very willing to answer questions even though he is on a tight schedule and is clearly interested in teaching, as he noted down a few topics that he would go home and research for future classes. Also get to meet a very interesting and diverse group of people that each bring interesting ideas and experiences to the class. Very useful!

Side note, I am a first year medical student and found it very encouraging and useful to learn some of the clinical things that we would either not learn, or wouldn't learn until later in our educations. Definitely a worthwhile investment of time and money.
